CAMP WANATACHI

Camp Wanatachi defies all expectations of both gay coming-of-age-plays and musicals. The result is refreshing and uplifting.

- TimeOut New York

Mercurial Productions' tuner has all the ingredients of a hilariously subversive piece of theater.

- New York Magazine

This hormone-charged motley crew will make you laugh and ponder conceptions about religion and sexual identity in a postmodern age.

- Paper Magazine

Very catchy....It's a sound we haven't heard that much from new musicals, and I for one would love more.

13 YEAR-OLD CHRISTIAN LESBIAN IS CUTEST THING EVER!

CAMP WANATACHI is a spirit-soaked, hormone-charged new musical comedy about two 13-year-old girls who fall in love at Christian summer camp.

(New York City, New York) Produced by the star of Disney - ABC's Legend of the Seeker, Bridget Regan, and Ian Pai, co-founder of Blue Man Group and drummer of Fischerspooner, this genre-mashing musical tackles faith and sexual identity with thick beats and weird humor. Written and composed by performance artist Natalie Weiss (of Unicornicopia), a concert version of CAMP WANATACHI just completed a sold out run in the 2009 New York International Fringe Festival.

Largely autobiographical, CAMP WANATACHI is the story of two young girls, a bulimic slut, Titi, and Jana, young, earnest and religious. Their relationship develops surrounded by an ensemble of eccentric characters, including a suicidal goth, an enthusiastic over-achiever and a recently converted pot-head counselor (played by Natalie Weiss.)

With beats by glitch-hero Machinedrum and a lush live orchestra, CAMP WANATACHI features songs like the mind-blowing electro-spiritual "We All Need Jesus in Our Lives," and the mysterious, epic and exultant "Let's Ride Bareback." Visually hip and stylized, this nostalgic musical is super futuristic.
