

BETH AMANN

Grew up in San Diego, CA. Was valedictorian of her graduating high school class of roughly 550 students. Picked up a DSLR camera her senior year and didn't stop shooting. She learned as she shot, picked up post-processing styles each season, and grew. see flickr.com/beleam

She moved to the Bay Area and started attending UC Berkeley for architecture. She was taught by the best designers and thinkers of her time. She gathered construction detail upon detail into her head, learned how to pull all-nighters, and called arch studio her home. Three years later she'd earned a degree with the highest honors.

Now she's ambitious and optimistic and ready take on whatever's next.
