Community Dialogue Space (CDS)

The Global Fund is a co-sponsor of CDS with UNDP and UNAIDS

The Community Dialogue Space is a venue in which conference delegates and the general public can engage with community-based and grassroots HIV organizations from around the world. It aims to influence key events and the outcomes of the conference through interactive discussions and stories about some of the victories and challenges faced by communities on the frontline. The Community Dialogue Space will be hosted by the twenty-five 2010 Red Ribbon Award winning organizations. The interactive programme includes high-level dialogue sessions between civil society and international leaders each day, press conferences and cultural events.

'Access to Life' and 'Born HIV Free' - Photography and Multimedia installations

These installations, proposed by the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, evoke the importance of support for expanded access to treatment for individuals from all walks of life including (through the 'Born HIV Free' campaign) a special focus on expectant mothers living with HIV, for whom passing on the virus to their child is completely avoidable when care and treatment are available. The aim of the installation experience is for visitors not only to learn about these causes and be moved by them, but to be motivated to act by registering their support for the Global Fund.

The 'Access to Life' photo exhibit, co-produced with Magnum Photo Agency, uses photographs by some of the world's best photojournalists to intimately portray what it means to have access to antiretroviral treatment, during the first four months of this treatment for HIV and AIDS. Video and text are also used to tell these moving stories, which were gathered in nine countries around the world chosen to represent some of the regions and groups most vulnerable to the HIV and AIDS pandemic

The 'Born HIV Free' campaign uses vivid, imaginative and animated short films that are entertaining and educational, as well as a campaign website where viewers are invited to learn more about preventing transmission of HIV from mother to child, and to sign their name to a web-based petition of support. While some of the animations explore the promise of life to come when children can look forward to a future free of HIV, more 'didactic' films within the collection highlight the importance of our solidarity with all women who need PMTCT treatment around the world.

In collaboration with Global Fund Ambassador Carla Bruni-Sarkozy, this campaign for the Global Fund calls on viewers to watch, learn, and then to act, by registering their support online for the aim of eliminating the transmission of HIV between mothers and children everywhere by 2015.
