Mother's Day Necklace Charms—Assembly Suggestions

- Print these flower charms on cardstock for durability. Choose any color paper you and your students want.
- Allow students to choose which charms they want to cut out and decorate.
- The writing shows up best when students can trace over the letters with a dark marker.
- Once students finish decorating, I laminate them for durability and hole punch each flower. The hole is positioned near the center, rather than the edge, so that the hole doesn't rip as students make the necklaces.
- Students can lace the flower charms with yarn, ribbon, or pipe cleaners.
- I also give my students small boxes that I purchase from my local Dollar Tree store. I decorate the box so that they can use them as jewelry gift boxes.

Mother's Day Bracelet Charms—Assembly Suggestions

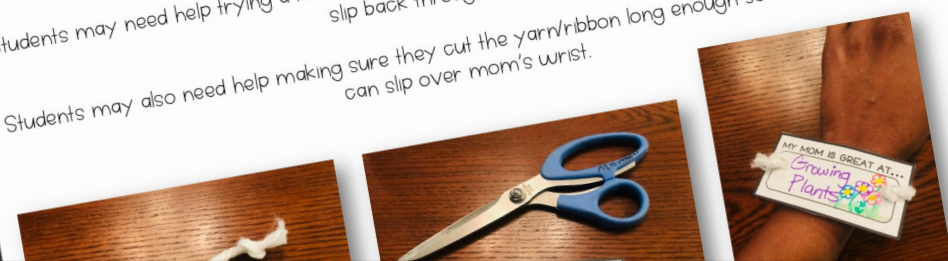

I print these on cardstock and put them on a table in my classroom. I allow my students to choose which charm they want to cut out and decorate. You can use whatever system works best for your classroom.

Once students finish decorating, I laminate them for durability and hole punch each side. Be sure to tell students each small white hole will be punched out.

Then students lace the yarn / ribbon/ pipe cleaner through the holes to complete the bracelet.

Students may need help trying a knot in the yarn or ribbon. The knot needs to be big enough to NOT slip back through the holes.

Students may also need help making sure they cut the yarn/ribbon long enough so that the bracelet can slip over mom's wrist.
