Causation cards are a fun, interactive way to review vocabulary and concepts that students need to learn. In addition, this engaging activity helps improve fluency and listening skills.

So how do causation cards work? The method is similar to the "I have... who has..." cards, where each student has to listen carefully to other students to know when it is their turn. However, causation cards do not contain a repeated language (like "I have... who has..."). Instead it will state an action that a student must perform and a statement they must say. The action can be something simple from jumping in the air to drawing on the board. The statement can be a definition of a term or related concept.

In this resource, you will find the end of a statement the previous student said in yellow (or in bold in the black and white version), the action to be performed in italics and what that particular student who has the card says in regular black font. I have also placed numbers on each card so you know if you have all your cards and what order they go in. Finally, along the border you will find the prop needed to complete the action, if applicable.

This activity can be used as a quick review or as an introduction. You can challenge students to go through the entire set as fast as they can or to beat their previous record.

I hope you enjoy this electrifying activity!
