Remus

According to legend, Rome was founded in 753 BCE by brothers Romulus and _____. The two brothers were said to be twin sons of Mars, the Roman god of war. The story goes that the twins were left near the banks of the Tiber River as infants where they were rescued and raised by a _____. The twins founded the city of Rome and fought over who would be king. Romulus killed his brother Remus and took the throne as the first king of Rome. It remained a kingdom until the last king, Tarquin the Proud, was _____. As a result, the Roman Republic began and lasted almost _____ years. Rome had a king, but it also had a Senate. The Senate was a ruling body that worked together with the king to make _____ and enforce them. The Senate was also responsible for electing a king when the previous king died.

6 PASSAGES

Students will read 6 short passages about the topic, then answer questions.

Historians often divide ancient Rome into three main periods: Before the rise of Rome, the Roman Republic, and the Roman Empire. Between 509 BC and 27 BC, the city-state of Rome was run as a republican government. Republican governments are representative democracies where the people of the nation are represented by elected officials. Before 509 BC, the Roman people were ruled by a monarchy in central Italy. They did not appreciate a king making decisions for them. The king didn't understand what daily life was like for the people of Rome and when they were free of his rule, they decided to create a government run by a group of people instead of one king. The first written laws were known as the Twelve Tables. These laws stated the rights of the Roman citizen and were written on bronze tablets in 451 BC.
