The Mayflower was the name of the ship that carried the Pilgrims in 1620. They sailed from England to the New World. The Mayflower voyage occurred because most Pilgrims wanted the freedom to practice their religion without interference in England.

The people on the Mayflower who just wanted a new start in the New World were known as Strangers. To pay for their journey, the Pilgrims promised to send back goods for every year after landing in North America. Separatists were trying to get away from religious persecution (harsh treatment) from King James of England.

The Mayflower had three levels: the main deck, the cargo hold and the gun deck. The Mayflower was a merchant ship that transported goods such as wine, cloth, wood and salt to and from different ports in Europe. Due to the fact that it was a merchant ship, it was not designed to navigate the winds and waters of the North Atlantic.

Sailing alongside the Mayflower was another ship named the Speedwell. The Mayflower and Speedwell turned back twice due to leaks and complications. Eventually, the leaky Speedwell was left behind.

The Mayflower left Plymouth, England on September 6, 1620, and crossed the Atlantic Ocean. Christopher Jones, the Captain, was in charge of sailing the Mayflower. The original destination was Virginia but heavy storms moved the ship off course and they ended up landing in Cape Cod.

The ship carried 102 men, women and children. The passengers had to stay in the dark, damp, cold cargo decks where goods and supplies were normally kept.

Due to heavy storms, the journey was very unpleasant and many became seasick. After weeks on the water, the Mayflower finally reached the New World.
