The Mayan civilization began in 1800 BC. Although their civilizations were similar, the Maya came thousands of years before the Aztec. They occupied areas in Belize, Guatemala, the Yucatan Peninsula, Mexico and Honduras. The Maya were one of several Mesoamerican civilizations. They are known for astronomy, architecture, and hieroglyphic writing. They believed the stars, sun and moon were gods. They noted their eclipses, solstices and equinoxes in their temples.

The Mayan civilization consisted of a large number of city-states. Each city-state had its own government. Every city-state was ruled by a king. The king was given the right to rule by the gods.

At the peak of the Mayan civilization, there were hundreds of Mayan cities. Although southern city-states collapsed, Mayan cities in the northern Yucatan Peninsula continued to succeed for several hundred years.
