BLACK HISTORY #2

Rosa Parks: Rosa was born in Alabama on February 4, 1918. Rosa Parks was a well known activist during the Civil Rights Movement. Parks lived in the segregated city of Montgomery, Alabama. During this time, things were different for black people and white people. On the way to work, Rosa had to sit in the back of the city bus. In 1955, Rosa refused to give up her seat on the bus for a white man and was arrested. At her trial four days later, she was found guilty of breaking the segregation laws. News of her arrest spread and the Montgomery Bus Boycott began. Black Americans refused to use the city bus system for 382 days. She became the secretary of the NAACP, an organization formed to restore the legal rights of Black Americans. Her act of defiance later helped end segregation in America.

Jesse Owens: Jesse Owens had to work throughout his middle school years to help support his ten brothers and sisters. His family moved to Ohio when he was 9 years old. Known as the Great Migration, about 1.5 million Black Americans moved away from the segregated South. His track coach knew that Owens had talent and let him practice before school. When he reached high school he had already tied the 100 meter dash world record. While at attending Ohio State University, he earned the nickname Buckeye Bullet. Since then, he went on to win four gold medals.

Wilma Rudolph: Wilma Glodean Rudolph was born in 1940, in Tennessee. Wilma Rudolph had polio and pneumonia as a child. Due to the disease, she had to wear a brace on her left leg. Her doctors told her she would never walk again. She went through years of physical therapy and began running around age 9. She ended up dominating her high school track and field team. At the age of 16, she won a bronze medal in the 4x100-meter relay race in the 1956 Olympics. She was the first woman ever to win three gold medals. Many call her the world's fastest woman.

Thurgood Marshall: Thurgood Marshall was born in 1908, in Maryland. Marshall was known as a great civil rights lawyer. He applied to the University of Maryland but was rejected due to racial segregation. In 1926, he attended Lincoln University in Pennsylvania. He later went on to graduate magna cum laude in 1933 from Howard University School of Law. He traveled the country defending African-Americans who were wrongly accused of a crime. He also
