STOCK MARKET

A stock market, also known as a market share or exchange, is a place where buyers and sellers come together to buy and sell shares or stocks of a company. Each share, which is sometimes called a stock or an equity, represents an interest in the person or company who owns it. Each stock share is worth a certain percentage of the company's value. For example, if a company has 100 total shares and the company is worth $100,000, then each share is worth $1,000. If Bob owns 51 shares, then he owns 51% of the company, and lots of other people own the other 49%.
