In 1845, a writer named John O'Sullivan first used the phrase 'Manifest Destiny' in a newspaper. He used the phrase to encourage people to move west. He believed it was the right of the American people to occupy the whole continent of North America. The idea behind Manifest Destiny was that Americans should spread "from sea to shining sea."

Before the Oregon Trail, Indigenous groups had already been living on the land for thousands of years. The history of the Oregon Trail is often one-sided. The real Oregon Trail wasn't a positive story for everyone. The arrival of settlers and the impact on those Indigenous groups was devastating. They were ravaged by disease, villages were burned, they were forced to abandon their own language, religion, and culture. English expansion meant a great threat to their way of life. Many wrongly believe that the settlers and Indigenous people coexisted in peace.
