The War of 1812 was a struggle between the United States and Great Britain. It was also known as "The Forgotten War" and the "Second War of Independence" in many aspects. Great Britain and France were locked into war with one another and both sides tried to prevent the United States from trading with the other for supplies, food and weapons needed in the war.

Most of the British forces were Canadian militia (volunteers) because British soldiers were already fighting Napoleon in Europe. The British Navy restricted (limited or did not allow) U.S. trade, but they also used a practice called impressment on the United States. Impressment meant that a ship could capture another and press its crew into serving their purposes. For the British Navy taking U.S. ships, that meant they were forced to fight for Great Britain in their war against France. The U.S. didn't think that practice was fair.
